

Mediation, Arbitration and ADR

Fowler White Boggs's litigators have extensive experience representing plaintiffs and defendants in alternative dispute resolution (ADR) procedures for tort and business cases including: personal injury, wrongful death, product liability, professional malpractice, nursing home litigation, civil rights litigation, commercial and construction litigation. Fowler White Boggs also has several seasoned litigation attorneys who serve as certified mediators in State and Federal Court, and serve as arbitrators. In addition to serving as neutral mediators or arbitrators, these attorneys are available to consult with our clients to design and implement effective ADR procedures for all types of contracts or to assist in designing and implementing a procedure for a specific dispute.
