With more than 20 lawyers practicing in the health care industry, our team has the depth and breadth to represent the industry in every facet of the law impacting health care entities and practitioners.

We have lawyers regularly serving the industry in general business, transactional, litigation and regulatory/compliance matters. Many of the lawyers serving the health care industry have more than 30 years experience in cutting edge health care issues.

Health Care Corporate Compliance Experience

Fowler White Boggs has substantial and successful experience in helping health care organizations and professionals comply with regulatory requirements and avoid, investigate, and defend claims of fraud and abuse. Our Firm offers lawyers in the fields of white collar criminal law, independent investigations and audits, regulatory compliance, permits, antitrust, improper pricing, and whistleblower claims. Plus, our Firm addresses the evolving claims under the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996, Medicare/Medicaid, False Claims Act, Anti-Kickback Act, including Stark, and other health care fraud laws.

Our White Collar criminal defense lawyers are former federal prosecutors. They have handled many aspects of criminal medical fraud. For example, we have recently:

- investigated and defended insurance companies concerning alleged fraud in providing home health care insurance in South Florida,
- investigated and defended a health care professional for alleged criminal health care fraud in the Tampa Bay area, and
- investigated and defended corporations throughout the state concerning alleged criminal fraud and misrepresentations in connection with medicaid and medicare fraud.

Our commercial litigators have defended multiple Florida class action lawsuits alleging unfair medical pricing and have defended whistleblower, benefits, and insurance claims and appeals.
